Synopsis

SEVENTEEN national awards and honors! While camping with a group of girls, Susan Andra Lion was given this tale about trees, nature and also the relationship of living things within a forest ecosystem. Sue Lion’s highly visual story book not only presents a fascinating story that children ages 3 and older will enjoy, but also tells a second story about animals, plants, birds, and the Earth itself. Children will learn about the integrated way in which Earth’s inhabitants live in relationship to each other, and learn the value of respect for each form of life. This is a unique and marvelous book helps its readers to regard their world as a complex tapestry of life and living things. Children will be delighted by the thumbnail descriptions which surround the outside of each page, inviting them in and helping them learn about the world of the forest and greater ecosystem of Mother Earth. Customer Reviews

Sue Lion has produced a beautifully illustrated and thought-provoking book that can open your eyes and hearts to the subtle yet ever present communication from all of life, particularly trees. It will inspire you to listen more closely to the natural world with all your senses. --Dr. Steven Farmer, author of Earth Magic and Children's Spirit Animal Cards, with Jesseca CamachoSue Lion's How the Trees Got Their Voices awakens the inner child within each of us! Enchanting and inspiring, this two layered story format brilliantly introduces us to the world of sound in the most magical way with all its beauty and ability to heal the planet! --Andi & Jonathan Goldman, Authors of CHAKRA FREQUENCIESSue Lion has given us an extraordinary gift in How The Trees Got Their Voices. Her art is magical and inspiring and the story is lyrical, opening us to a profound sense of wonder that we can share with our children. Sometimes we miss the ever-present messages in Nature, and Lion's lovely story invites us to open our subtle senses and listen to the voices. --Julie Loar, Author of Goddesses for Every Day

Winner of 12 national awards, a beautifully-crafted tale about trees, Mother Earth and her many life forms, and the relationship of all living things. An instant best seller, this is the perfect gift for children ages 3 and above. A book they'll cherish and remember for years to come. One of the loveliest books you'll ever hold in your hands.

Oh my goodness! What a delightful book to be shared by an adult and child. Susan Lion writes with such respect for her intended young audience, providing them with not only a fanciful story, but a wealth of information and knowledge bout nature and the world we live in. Each page contains facts about nature and our world, using language that will enrich each child's vocabulary and language skills. And the art!!! The art!!! I'd suggest reading this book at least three times at the first sitting. First, read the story and glance at the art. Go back to the beginning and read all the wonderful facts that surround each page. Finally, go back again to examine each beautiful page carefully for all the surprises you missed the first two times. Don't stop there---do it all again!

Everyone in the WORLD should read this book when they are young and throughout their life span ...beautiful!

My 5-year-old loves this book, and so do I. The pictures are so richly detailed, and the story of how the trees got their voices is beautifully told and nuanced with a deep understanding of the magic and wonder of the natural world.

Kids love this book they love the illustration happy with it.

it is wonderfull, exactly as I expected!

Beautiful story and the book arrived in great condition. Love it!

Very Cute

This magical, enchanting book was written to make young readers aware of the connection between all living things here on earth. While camping with a group of girls, the author was given a revelation about trees, nature, and the delicate, special relationship within the forest ecosystem.Lion stimulates imaginations as she tells the children how Mother Earth gave the trees their voices and she teaches them how the inhabitants of the earth must live together and be committed to look after each other. The author emphasizes the value of respecting all forms of life and awakens the obligation inside everyone of us to the importance of caring and respecting all living things.This stunning book tells a story on two levels. The first is the storyline itself and the second story expounds on the animals, plants, birds, and the very Earth itself. The second being told by displays of facts that are placed all around the periphery of every page. What a brilliant idea!"This medium of a two-level story about the forest, the Earth and the environment creates a unique, shared experience between children and the people who read to them because they are sharing the visual experience of this wonderful story and the forest world together. But it is also one of the loveliest books that readers will ever hold in their hands, noted Karen Stuth, owner of Satiama, LLC, a Palmer Lake, Colorado-based publishing company that has brought the book forward."The illustrations are truly mesmerizing and capture the aura of the book perfectly. It was awarded 12 national awards and honours:Winner of the Moonbeam Children’s Literacy Award -- Mind, Body, Spirit Category. Winner of the Mom’s Choice Award Gold Medal; Winner of Creative Child Magazine

2014 Book of the Year; Overall Winner, 2015 Next Generation Indie Awards, Best Design Fiction; Finalist, 2015 Next Generation Indie Awards, New Age Category; National Parenting Publications Awards (NAPPA) Silver award winner; Coalition of Visionary Resources: Winner -- Visionary Fiction Category; Winner -- People's Choice Award Book of the Year 2015; Finalist, Children's and Teens Books; Finalist, Conscious Living Books; Winner 2015 International Book Awards: Children's Mind/Body/Spirit category.This would be the ideal gift to give to the child in your life. It would be perfect for the approaching holiday season, but why wait? Enjoy a copy now. I know you will be more than pleased with this impressive book.
