Customer Reviews

This lively trip to the dairy farm introduces calves, heifers and milkers. Full-color illustrations and fact-filled text take us through meadows, barns and a milking parlor. Each book features a topic-related activity, an index, a vocabulary list and fasc --American Farm Bureau, Recommended Book List --This text refers to the Paperback edition.

Andy Murphy is a Capstone Press author.

I'm a Daisy Girl Scout Leader. Our troop is working on curriculum for an animal badge, so we took a field trip to the local Dairy Farm. We read this book at our meeting in preparation for our visit to the farm. It was very informative and we found it to be accurate. The girls even gave the farmer's grief about the condition of the cow's feet at the farm we visited after learning in this book how important their hygiene is.

A concise, informative & amusing book that earned an enthusiastic 2 thumbs up from my preschoolers! From a teacher's perspective, the text reads easily and keeps the children's focus (no easy feat with a group of 5 year olds). From the child's perspective, the ice cream making activity was a huge hit (& easy enough for each child to do with minimal assistance), and being able to outwit your parents in dairy trivia (what is a flink?) is fun! I bought the book to support a science unit lesson plan & it was such a hit that we've ended up planning a field trip to a local dairy farm in the Spring. I'm very pleased with this excellent addition to my classroom library.

This book is extremely well-written with the elementary student in mind. It is both fun and fact-filled! The kids don't even know they are learning! I am an Enlgish teacher and I used this book in my class with great results. It gave me a week's worth of activities and discussions. It is a great preparatory tool for a field trip and also includes a delicious and easy recipe for ice cream- and clean-up is a breeze! The kids absolutely loved it! I will use it every year and I even amaze my friends with my homemade ice cream! Keep writing Andy Murphy!
