Bernard Ireland has spent his working life with the Royal Naval Scientific Service and its successor organizations. To an already deep interest in naval history he has thus added a considerable in-depth knowledge of warship technology, enabling him to assess a design’s strengths and weaknesses. He has also acted as freelance technical illustrator to major shipping companies. He has written 30 books on maritime technological or historical subjects, and has also contributed to many partworks and journals.

Book better than I expectied. Very satisfied with transaction

"Illustrated" here means taking a bunch of pictures with expired copyright and print them with some un-insightful text.I mean it isn’t bad per se. But if you want to make a picture book it should be a coffee table format book.
