Ed Epstein is a contributor for Storey Books titles including: Build A Smokehouse. A Storey Country Wisdom Bulletin A-81

This is a book for beginners or advanced smokers. Every smoker is explained with great detail. I recommend this book to anyone.

Pamphlet covered the basics and gave simple to complex examples. For one raised on a small Southern farm in the 1950s and explored my grandfather's large smoke house during that time, this pamphlet sums up most of what I know from those days. It, also, gives me a clearer understanding of the smoking methods and processes.

great information to have.

Good little book

Great info and a wonderful reference for ideas. I probably wont build any of the smoke houses it gives plans for, but it does really inspire the imagination to create something unique. The plethora of drawings and sketches really help to visualize the process and give you some new ideas for a fresh approach on how to make a smokehouse that fits your own unique situation.

This manual is a very basic intro into building smoke houses, and if you want to build a serious unit you will be better served to buy something else like "Meat Smoking And Smokehouse Design." All that being said, it is nice to have it in one place and it builds on the fundamentals as you go. The catch is that you can get most all of the content for free on the public Internet forums. For about $3.50 "it's okay."

Interesting, simple guide to build a smokehouse. It does not waste your time going into the many different kinds that could be built. It just basically tells you how to build one.

Lots of info
