Synopsis

Airman Down (originally published in 1955 as Valley of the Shadow) is the gripping story of the downing, capture, and subsequent escape and rescue of Captain Ward M. Millar, 7th Fighter-Bomber Squadron, U.S. Air Force, in 1951 during the Korean Conflict.While on his 30th combat mission over Korea, mechanical problems resulted in a fire on his F80 Shooting Star jet, forcing Millar to eject from his burning aircraft. Chinese troops quickly reached Millar, now suffering from two broken legs, and carried him away from inbound rescuers, who were unable to locate Millar. It was three months later, on September 10, 1951, following Millar's internment, escape, and evasion of capture for three weeks, that he was rescued by helicopter south of Pyongyang. Also airlifted to safety in Seoul was a sergeant in the North Korean Army who befriended and aided Millar during his evasion of the enemy.

Customer Reviews

Have to be upfront on this in that I reported to the author when in the USAF. Wonderful man and officer with an incredible, moving story to tell. His experience brought him closer to God and gives the reader much to think about. Its not a long read, and the writing is more of a memoir than novel, but what a message! Recommend.

Fabulous! For the first time people get to know the air force has its own version of special forces

Very descriptive in the personal interactions between the pilot his captors and others involved in his travels. Very glad to see that the book shows that God , skill, training, good judgment and not just luck brought him home.

Get it, his story deserves to be read and it is almost unbelievable! Two broken ankles and he wants and does escape! Service was excellent with fast shipping.

A great true story about a war that few really know about. Its a part of History, that needs to be told.
