Customer Reviews

The Princeton Review is the fastest growing test-preparation company in the country, with over 60 franchise offices in the nation. Each year, we help more than 2 million students prepare for college, grad school, professional licensing exams, and successful careers.

The book seemed pretty good until the first chapter already had basic errors. The words aren't in the alphabetical order they say they are in. For example the words under category Fl through Hi, contain words that are Ex through Fe. And this is only one such instance. The book as a whole seems pretty good but as others have pointed out there are basic issues that need fixing.

This book was recommended by a school administrator. My child was able to do some preliminary testing with blank answer sheets similar to the test answer sheets. The questions are for students entering 9-12 grades, so some vocabulary and math may have to be skipped over due to advanced material. It had a lot of helpful SSAT test information.

We purchased both this volume and the 2015 editions so that our child would have extra problems to work on. Unfortunately, they duplicated the tests from the 2015 edition, so there was no point in buying it.

I like the book as a resource. You'd need to add vocabulary practice (they give you the words, but you need to find and practice the definitions on your own) and may need to add more math practice if you're not doing well with the problems in the book. I wish there were a second practice test so you could do a pre and post assessment. I use this book to teach ISEE and SSAT prep, supplementing as needed.

This book's structure needs to be revised. Good content but difficult to follow for the specific grade of your child. For what they're charging, it should be a lot easier with all content related to the grated in one section instead of having everything everywhere. If I could I would return this. Not recomended so many math errors. you think you are crazy and it does undermine the kids' confidence.

Good

Great book for SSAT practice.
