Synopsis

This important Henry Rowe Schoolcraft work, first issued by Michigan State University Press in 1953, is now available as the second title in MSU Press's Schoolcraft Series. The book was originally published in 1821 under the long and pretentious title Narrative Journey of travels through the Northwestern Regions of the United States, extending from Detroit through the Great Chain of American Lakes to the Sources of the Mississippi River, Performed as a Member of the expedition under Governor Cass, in the Year 1820; it recounts Schoolcraft's participation in the John C. Calhoun-sponsored 1820 expedition to explore the cast, uncharted territory stretching from the upper Great Lakes into what is now northern Minnesota.Ã Â Ã Â Ã Â Ã Â Ã Â Ã Â Ã Â Ã Â This volume, a marvelous blend of reportage, scientific findings, and the author's personal observations, contains a wealth of information about geography and topography woven together with vivid descriptions of scenic beauty, Native American culture, and day-to-day life as a member of an exploring expedition.Ã Â Ã Â --This text refers to an out of print or unavailable edition of this title.

When Henry met the Indians on Grand Island and told the story to Longfellow, it was the inspiration for Hiawatha. This is a great book and gives a lot of geographical information. What a trip. The Appendices have great information.

This is great summary of schoolcrafts journals of the Cass expedition. The Excelent "foot-notes" and

"Appendix" offer too the reader a vast resource of further study and vaildation, a must for the the study of "fur-tade" and early Wisc./Minn. exploration
