When it comes to picking a hero for a children’s book, you can never go wrong with mice. From Mickey to Maisy to just about every Kevin Henkes book ever made, plucky rodents have made for incredibly popular protagonists. To that proud tradition comes the simply-named Mouse of Mouse’s First Day of School. After stowing away in a backpack, Mouse discovers all the wonders waiting at what appears to be a preschool or kindergarten. As Mouse explores each new station (blocks, books, pots and pans, plants, and more) with wonder and enthusiasm, author Lauren Thompson includes catchy phrases that kids will love repeating out loud. "Squiggle, scribble, dot crayons!" reads one page. "Feathery, floppy, boppy hats!" reads another. Buket Erdogan’s bright and simple pastel illustrations on textured backgrounds feature a happy

Mouse having a great time encountering objects that kids recognize from their home, day care, or school. (Ages 2 to 6) --John Moe --This text refers to an out of print or unavailable edition of this title.

PreSchool-K-This is a new "first" for mouse as he hides in a backpack and gleefully emerges into the brave new world of preschool. As in Mouse’s First Halloween (2000), Mouse’s First Valentine (2002), and Mouse’s First Christmas (1999, all S & S), Thompson and Erdogan have created a spirited landscape of simple text overlaying vividly colored, richly textured, mouse-sized scenes of kid-familiar objects. The creature frolics among an assortment of childhood icons, from blocks and a toy car to tubes of paint and a juice box and snacks. Expressive and playful text with phrases such as "Thump, boom, bump a drum

Very fun book! Our child sounds the car noise sounds as I read them! Awesome!

Perfect for 3 year olds.

This book has good illustrations, but it’s boring and lacks a real story. For babies only.

The illustrations are beautiful and the story kept prek b student engaged.

Good

Great read. My son loves the pictures!

Preschoolers liked listening and the pictures were good. It was a good choice for first day of school for the little ones.

This book does not have any story line. A mouse falls into a backpack and ends up in an elementary school. He sees blocks, a toy car, a drum, books, dolls, plants, crayons, snacks, a hat, toy pots, and then two children. Each item has a few sounds or an adjective; ÃƒÂ¢Ã â ¬Ã Å“squiggle, scribble, dot crayons,ÃƒÂ¢Ã â ¬Ã Â• ÃƒÂ¢Ã â ¬Ã Å“feathery, floppy, boppy hats, ÃƒÂ¢Ã â ¬Ã Å“, but that is all. There is no story line, no plot, no adventure, and no emotions. That is it. The book is beautifully illustrated, large colorful pictures, and very little text. I would call this ÃƒÂ¢Ã â ¬Ã ËœA Picture BookÃƒÂ¢Ã â ¬Ã â„¢, definitely not a storybook. The saddest part of all is that my review is almost twice as long as this book.
