JARRETT J. KROSOCZKA is the author and illustrator of seven other Lunch Lady graphic novels, as well as numerous popular picture books, including Ollie, Punk Farm, Punk Farm on Tour, Max for President, and Baghead.

It’s picture day and most of the student body is paying an fifteen bucks to have their photos airbrushed because for some reason the scourge of acne has reached epidemic proportions. Fortunately Lunch Lady and the three students who make up the breakfast bunch are on the case and typical craziness ensues before justice is served. In this outing Lunch Lady will be crashing a fashion show and inadvertently popularizing a new cafeteria style of clothing. I tutor reading and my students from first through seventh grades can't resist this silly series. It's not an easy reader, but even beginning students are willing to work hard to read these books.

The Lunch Ladies are reliably funny, creative and allied with the forces of justice. The situations become more and more fantastic as the story goes on, which keeps them from being frightening. Odd tools are required, and the the lunch ladies always have what's needed, in the form of some food or kitchen implement - a spatula-copter, or powdered eggs for the fire sprinkler system. The lunch ladies always manage to capture the bad guys and stop their evil schemes. Good fun!

I bought a bunch in this series for my class library but the humor I find in Baby Mouse and the Squish series just isn't there. They were popular in the school library but I didn't find them that engaging as far as purchasing and reading these in comparison with some of the other series I bought. Good concept but needs to be funny!

The kids love it!!!!!

My kids love the series (3, 5, and 8yr olds). This one was nothing spectacular -- but the kids still enjoyed it. The graphic novels really draw in the younger boys.
