The paper is bleached white, which was unexpected and dissapointing for me, as I’ve been bred on Henle-quality parchment for my music. This would fulfill all my expectations if it used unbleached paper.Other than that, I like the line spacing, the size is great, the number of pages is fine for my purposes, and the thickness of the paper is fine. Nothing spectacular.

Staff lines are fairly thin and allow decent space between staves for below and above the staff writing. There are plenty of pages front and back but the pages are thick enough that ink doesn’t bleed through easily. Much better than manuscript spirals you might see on or other websites - albeit slightly more expensive. I received my (2) copies very quickly (bonus points for shipping!) and they are exactly what I need to continue my education/composing experiments MUHAHAHA.

This is def a MUST buy for any composer/musician/student. The lines are thin and a dark gray, you can easily write with a pencil, and erase any mistakes without damaging the line/paper. The paper is thick and of good quality. I bought about 6 of these already and they truly do their job. If you need manuscript paper, I HIGHLY recommend this one. I am a student currently using it for class to compose music and its great! You cant go wrong with this.

Has been my favorite staff paper note book for nearly twenty years. Great for working out ideas during personal practice. I give one to each private student and write assignments, notes and exercises. I also require students to copy a line or two of their own etude or method book to get them used to writing musical symbols. I've purchased dozens and will buy dozens more.

Nice quality paper; sturdy. I like the spacing between the lines, it's good and feels right. I've erased a bunch of times and it doesn't effect any of the staffs (it doesn't "erase" them or anything is what I mean). Would recommend!

High quality paper. The staves are a little bit too small for me, but that's the only way the printer could fit 12 staves on a page. Still, over time this may improve my musical penmanship.

This notebook works very well for me. The staff lines are nice and thin, they are nicely spaced and perfectly clear. I also very much appreciate the fact that the spiral binding is not the typical, cheap wire which is so easily bent out of shape, but rather a stout plastic spiral. The only drawback to this particular notebook is that the paper is about the same weight as typical office paper, I wish the paper was thicker.

Good quality paper, spiral bound, and plenty of space for writing down anything within and outside staffs.
