They are grouped primarily by size and type, progressing from seabirds like the Anhinga thru herons & larger waders, to hunters such as the osprey, falcons, kites, and hawks, to smaller waders and medium sized shore birds, then owls and parrots, and 12 species of hummingbirds! woodpecker & sap suckers, and all the smaller birds such as wrens, thrushes - and don't forget the ducks! Lots of ducks and the always interesting Rufuous-bellied Chuchalaca. Robert Dean, the illustrator, has been living in Costa Rica and studying the birds of Central America since the 1990s, and is tops in his field of interest.

Great on the fly (so to speak) guide for our recent week-long trip to Baja Sur, liked having the Mexican common names for the bird species. Would highly recommend the Birds We See, by Llewellyn, C. E. if you are in Baja Sur. Spendier and not a field guide, but had excellent photos of most of the common bird species we saw, with additional anecdotal comments.
