Customer Reviews

My father read these books by James Oliver Curwood decades ago, and he allowed me to read one when I was 14 years old. I loved the book then. Whenever offered a large collection on Kindle, I was very happy.I have not yet read the entire collection - I am now reading the 12th of 22 books. Every one have I read is very interesting. They usually have a setting of the far frozen north country of Canada, action taking place usually in the wilderness. There is always some danger and/or mystery involved along with a great deal of adventure. They are very enjoyable books to read.

This collection may not be complete, but it DOES contain Curwood'sbest and most important works. The only real items left out are his very early work for his hometown newspaper, as well as, other papers; and his stories published only in magazienes. An Excellent Collection!

I first read Curwood when I was a teen ager. I have never forgotten his ability to describe in prose the people and areas of Canada, including the wonderful scenery and the brutal weather. Two stories are about animals - one a wolf/dog and one a bear. They are the best I have ever read.

Written in the style of back when Zane Grey was in his hayday. I originally read The Hunted Woman because a great great Uncle was the model of one of the characters in the book. Bought the collection and am working on reading them all.

This titles are already free to get because they are no recent publications. However, for me it was a great idea to download them all in one, for a really small payment. I'm glad I got this set.Since my teens I love Kazan! Now Kazan travels with me in my Kindle.

Compared to Jack London and Zane Grey, I'd give James Curwood first place! In the 1920's he was the highest paid, per word, of any author; and rightfully so!

I am so enjoying this collection from an author from my hometown of Owosso, Michigan. It is so thrilling to me to know my hometown bred this very talented author.
