Very beautiful design.A good choice for beginners , words are more basic.Arranged by alphabet, no number on cards.For nouns, gender is listed, but no plural.

I thought that these cards would come in some kind of order. Perhaps start with like, things in the home, or at the park. Its just a bunch of small flash cards that are not in any particular order. Like if someone just took a dictionary, shuffled the pages and put them back in.

These German Study Cards are okay, but they could have been great with very little effort!The box contains one thousand cards. The cards are small and made from thin paper, which makes them difficult to handle. Every card is the same color, with an English word on the blue side, and the German word on the white side, along with the type of speech. (verb, noun, adverb etc)These cards would be much better with a few improvements. It would be nice if they were larger and made from a higher quality, thicker card stock. There could be a hole punched in each card, to keep them organized on a ring. The cards could be color coded according to subject, such as verbs and different categories of nouns.Overall, a very good concept that needs improvement!

I rated this with five stars because it has really helped me with my German vocabulary. However it has a few errors. Some cards are not marked as what they are. One or two verbs are marked as adjectives.

Needs pronunciations on each card.

I have some serious work to do!
