As someone who also has Lupus, it was good to see that I am not alone. It did inspire me to do more to bring awareness to this awful disease. It was easy to read, relatable, and a page turner.

My daughter has lupus and every time I find something on the topic, I try to find something that will help me understand this disease more. I really need to understand what's happening to her because I don't.

Very inspiring story from a very strong woman. Great read! Recommended to ALL!!

Too many suffer in silence, afraid to express our true pain just to be told they are faking. Congratulations to Amanda for telling her very personal story and hopefully opening the door to others to share theirs. Amanda really lets the reader into her life with love, laughter and tears. Love this book!

A quick read that is full of tears, laughs and insight into what it's really like to live with Lupus. Thank you Amanda for telling your story and hopefully helping others to have the courage to tell theirs.

Probably one of the hardest things to deal with, is to feel the physical struggles of an auto immune disorder but not "look sick". Amanda's book portrays an honest and raw account of her struggles with Lupus flares and how difficult it was to diagnose. This book is an inspiration and a guide to help fellow Lupus warriors (or anyone with an auto immune disorder) to see they are not alone... and with support from family and friends you can prevail. A truely positive and heartfelt read!

Great book for those struggling with this disease. Amanda shares her life, pain, and happiness. So glad there are people opening up about this disease and willing to share it with others.

The book is an excellent read. I really don't know if I could say it any better. I would add one thing: It is also good for the family of a Lupus sufferer. My husband it going to read it next. :)
