Customer Reviews

Tad Hills is the author and illustrator of Duck & GooseÃ¢â ¬â •called Ã¢â ¬Å“expressiveÃ¢â ¬Â• and Ã¢â ¬Å“adorableÃ¢â ¬Â• in a starred review from Kirkus ReviewsÃ¢â ¬â •and Duck, Duck, Goose, both New York Times bestsellers. He is also the illustrator of Waking up Wendell by April Stevens. He lives in Brooklyn, New York, with his wife and two children.

One of my children’s savor to board books. My 7 year old still pulls it out for every child that comes t our house and points and counts and makes up stories with the various pages. I love that it is counting without large obnoxious images of things in one dimension in a row. Rather it is like a story of the things they are doing and seeing. The art work is really well done and I would recommend this to any parent.

My toddler loves this book and all other Duck and Goose books! This one is great because we are able to work on his counting skills. I definitely recommend it!

Grand kids 3. Yr old twin boys love these books. They especially like to be read to at nap time. Good sturdy, fun books.

I am a HUGE fan of Tad Hills' Duck & Goose books, especially his board books. I like this book but I don't love it. The colors are bright, we see lots of familiar faces, and the cuteness is overwhelming! However, I like counting books that focus only on the objects we are counting. This book is a bit too busy for really young children but may work better with an over-1 crowd.

Cute, colorful book

great teaching books

Our kid loves it!

I buy books for my nephew, who turned 1 on Christmas Day. My brother and sister-in-law read to him every day so I buy all ranges of books to add variety for them (the adults). This is a beautiful book and a wonderful series overall. The illustrations are so colorful and the books are kid-hand-friendly. I will add more of this series to his library.
