Singling out the "offbeat nostalgia" of the "energetic" watercolors in this tale of a round-the-world grocery trip, PW called Priceman "a master of whimsy." Ages 4-8. Copyright 1996 Reed Business Information, Inc.

Grade 1-3-In this whimsical, geographical shopping journey, a young baker thinks of how to proceed if the market is closed. She directs readers, via various modes of transportation, to gather seminola wheat in Italy, a chicken (for its egg) in France, bark from the kurundu (cinnamon) tree in Sri Lanka, a cow (for butter) in England, salt water and sugar cane in Jamaica, and apples in Vermont. Processing the worldly ingredients is quickly handled, a pie is baked, and friends are invited to share. A look around the table reveals children from all of the countries in which the foods have been found. A recipe for apple pie appears on the last page. The brightly colored pictures are fanciful, revealing cheerful, busy people working in towns, fields, and forests of the various countries. The purposeful girl in a green pinafore collects her ingredients with enthusiasm and good cheer. A lighthearted, pleasurable selection.Carolyn Jenks, First Parish Unitarian Church, Portland, MECopyright 1994 Reed Business Information, Inc. --This text refers to an alternate Paperback edition.

This book was just a fabulous book that takes you along to all the different places that apple pie ingredients are grown. It gives children a real sense of what it takes to get food to the grocery store. Our favorite part is when they forgot to get the apples and had to have the pilot drop them off in Vermont so they could pick some. A cow in a parachute is not a sight one sees on a regular basis! :) Very sweet and well thought out... especially the ending! :)

This is a great story, and not for kids alone! My husband and I like this story (and the others by the same author) just as much as the kids like it! It is whimsically well written, and the illustrations are fantastic! This book has been read so many times, we are on our third copy of the book! HIghly recommended, this is a family favorite, and we dearly love our books!

Good book.

A delightful picture book for children ages 3 to 8 yrs. -- Even includes a good basic recipe for apple pie!My three year old grandson loves this book and he also loves to make apple pie -- next we'll have to see the world together--maybe starting next year!

Very sweet story for kids of all ages! We have also made the pie from the recipe from the back with great results! Some of the very best apple pie we have made. The story is silly and lighthearted, with great illustrations. Truly a family favorite.

We never get sick of this book! It's lovely. You can do so much with it: find the states/countries mentioned on a map, make an apple pie, do the actions described in the book, etc.

Love this little activity book - I especially like how it tells you to call friends over to share in your pie.

Try it out with your kids! We were surprised how many of our friends dropped what they were doing and came over for some warm apple pie. My son loved it! We used a globe while we read the book to show where we were going as well. A great lesson in geography for little people while being fun as well!

I have the hardcover for my sons and we absolutely LOVE it! It's a beautifully illustrated, short story about a girl who wants to make an apple pie, but the store is closed, so she travels far and wide to collect all the ingredients. There is even a recipe for apple pie at the end. Good stuff!!! We've given the book as gifts and it is always a favorite. My only gripe is that you can't get it in hardcover anymore.
