Book by Rand McNally

Detailed, usable, road atlas which covers everyplace out to I-495, ALL AT THE SAME SCALE! It’s one continuous map, so you can orient yourself by following a road from page to page. You only have to know approximately where you are to find yourself on this map, and you never need to know what town you’re in just to be able to look something up. There’s an extensive list of street names in the back, arranged by towns. Streets are clearly marked and named. They indicate schools, libraries, shopping centers, parks, cemeteries, and many other points of interest.If you are used to wrestling with those Arrow maps that put one town on each double page, you will find it much much easier to get around by using this map. And it doesn’t have ads tucked in, like on that big red map.The book is spiral bound softcover. A fold-out, laminated front cover has some overview maps and the key map so you can quickly find the page you want. My only beef is that I’d prefer that key map to be on the first foldout flap rather than tucked inside, since it’s the one I use most often.
