Heather Sanders Connellee was born and raised in Baltimore. Since the age of fifteen, she has been exploring the trails in and around Baltimore. Her wanderlust and love of the outdoors has taken her to hiking trails across the country and around the world. She spent 6 months backpacking the Appalachian Trail from Georgia to Maine. Heather is the former trail programs manager for the American Hiking Society where she spearheaded National Trails DayÃ Â® and the National Trails Fund and lead various volunteer trail groups. Heather is editor of American Hiker magazine and writes for numerous outdoor and travel publications. She enjoys hiking, backpacking, rock climbing, kayaking, biking, and anything and everything outdoors. Heather and her husband Grant, along with two dogs and a cat, recently moved to Harford County, Maryland. Their bucket list is longer than the Mississippi River and includes a thru-hike of the Pacific Crest Trail, summiting Mt. Kilimanjaro, and bagging all 46 of the Adirondack High Peaks. Heather currently holds the position of Vice President at Leffler Agency, Inc., a Baltimore-based advertising firm. HeatherÃ¢â ¬â„¢s heart is in the mountains and home will always be Baltimore.

I'm a Baltimore native and intermediate hiker, but don't know much about the local hiking landscape, especially hikes that can be done in a matter of a few hours (with transportation). We also have a child so can't be doing long day hikes. I picked up this book and it is the perfect guide to sample some of the great day hikes in the area. The hike selection is very discerning, you can tell each one was chosen for some special attribute or another - they are categorized very nicely (water views, kid friendly, historical) and the descriptions are very detailed and thorough, with a nice splash of history/culture regarding the hike. I didn't want to get some mammoth collection where each hike started to run against each other, so this was perfect. We've been on three hikes so far, and they have been really nice and bring different things to the table - the Piney Branch hike has some amazing water views. With spring here, most assuredly we will be exploring the rest of the hikes in the guide! If you have a family, and/or like hiking but don't want it to take up an entire weekend day (we know how precious those days are!) and want to tap into some of the best kept hiking secrets of Baltimore, then this book is for you!
