Customer Reviews

I wish these had the dry erase material on both sides of the cards... my 3 year old wants to draw on the picture side but the marker does not erase. The pictures are also pretty terrible... see my photo. The green color doesn't help a little kid identify many of the generic ones and others are just kind of... really? Of all the words that start with that letter? X = boX... hey guys what about xylophone or x ray like every other kids alphabet uses? The dry erase on the letter side is fun and worth it at least so they're not a total waste.

I just wanted to put down a 5-star review but wants more out of me. So you're going to get it.Love them. Have victimized others with appropriately aged childrens with gifts of them.One thing I don't really like is that only one side has the wipeable finish. All the other reviews might say this but I didn't read them. Because I'm a goddern cowboy--that's why.Oh, and that Harvard thing is bull. But seriously, they're pretty cool and my kid likes them.

These are nice, but for being advertised for 2 and up, I didn't expect that the front of the cards would not also be erasable. When left unattended, your child will write on the front of the cards and the scribbles cannot be removed. :/

My kids really enjoy these cards

The set of uppercase letters came with a missing I, and it's necessary to spell her name as well as being a high frequency letter

Love it! Having only one letter per card helps my son focus better. He enjoys tracing all the letters. I'll probably end up buying the numbers write and wipe too.

My son is 3 and I was looking for activities for him while we are working on his attention span. He likes tracing these cards. I like that the pen is thin like a regular pen, but I did not realize the ink is not washable on fabric. We ruined a shirt before I figured it out. I now use these as flashcards until I can find thin dry erase markers.

This product is great for preschoolers! My son loved it! Plus, the tracing can be erased and you can trace it over and over again. The only thing is I just with there was a lower case to each upper cased letter on each card.
