Synopsis

Feeds, Feeding, and Animal Nutrition is the first text of its kind to finally pair ration formulation software with the text to create a comprehensive learning solution. Both products are created by the same author allowing for a streamlined presentation and experience. The animal feeding and nutrition industries are as computerized as any industry in the world, but the challenge has been to find software that can effectively accompany a text and give the student everything they need to succeed. This is a deficiency that has now been addressed. The ration formulation software has the same functionality as that used in the industry today and covers each species discussed in the text. Along with the software, the text includes the most current information on animal feeding and nutrition available, including full species coverage such as four ruminants, swine, chickens, rabbits, horses, dogs, cats, trout, and catfish. The text also extensively covers dietary energy, water requirements for livestock, and feed milling. Because the software and text are thoroughly integrated, the learner gets the most complete education possible, and the video game feel makes the work of the ration balancing interactive and fun.

reviewer quotes to come

David Tisch Ã Â¿ Professor at SUNY CobleskillÃ Â¿s Department of Animal Science. He has several years experience in the feed mill industry and teaches courses in the following areas: Feeds and Feeding; Advanced Ruminant Nutrition; Principles of Parasitology; Fish Nutrition; Feed Milling;

Principles of Animal Anatomy and Physiology; and Microcomputer Applications.

Picked this up for my nutrition class. Gets the job done.

Best thing is the excel spreadsheet that calculates feed requirements bad book!

worked for granddaughter for class.

Perfect..

This book is a very boring book to read. Also this disk isn't very user friendly

Nowhere in the book does it show or list the author's credentials. The entire book is black and white. It reads like a book that Farm Industry wrote it to support their business.
