You can certainly get a free map when arriving, but we found this map useful. It’s accurate (which you expect in a map), but also has good detail in key tourist areas and has independent recommendations for restaurants etc. we used it for several spots, and found a grocery store while in route for a picnic (could not have been found without the map). We use guidebooks on our iPad, but you can’t really use the iPad like a map, Especially in Rome. Even if using Google maps, I don’t think it works well while you are actually moving about the city... You need a real map. Only downside, no real transit info, except metro stations. You do need to understand the Bus system via a guidebook or online tool separately, the metro is limited in Rome wrt tourist spots.

Not very useful as a map. It’s more of a tour guide, with main sites to see. Has lots of hotels on map, but can’t find the main train station. Bought on Prime, and when I went to return it found there would be a charge of $4.95 to return. Will not buy from this company again!

The best travel map ever. MapEasy allows you to plan and explore from the comfort of you home or hotel. The large, well marked, colorful map show (via drawings) the main sights, lesser sights, hotels, restaurants and shopping. A must have for your travel.

This map was just ok. It is really pretty and vibrant BUT some of the most important streets are missing. How can you navigate your way around town or track your location when the street isn't listed on the map? They were so busy trying to push us towards their preferred restaurants and hotels that the neglected to cover the basics. Good grief. For folks who want to just wander the city and really explore, this map will get you mighty lost. We ended up just using a free map that we received from the hotel.

since I am "directionally impaired" these are absolutely a must for me. I haven't gotten lost using them

I liked this map because of the colorful pictures with the main attractions. It did not list all the streets but with a phone walking app it is great. The main reason I bought it was to use when scrapbooking the 2000 pictures I had.

My travel agent recommended this guide to Rome. I am so happy I purchased this as it was a great help while in Rome. Made of a sturdy, plastic like material so it holds up and doesn't get torn like paper maps. Plus it has suggestions of places to see while in Rome and highlights them on the map. Wouldn't go without it on my next trip.

Excellent, easy to read tourist map!
