Synopsis

This guidebook describes the best walking routes in Dublin and Wicklow. From mountain landscape to scenic coastal paths, from woodland trails to challenging hill-walks, there are routes here for everyone. Trips vary from two-hour strolls to eight-hour treks, and are illustrated with sketch maps and color photographs. Each route is prefaced with a quick-reference summary, and descriptions include detailed access notes and navigational guidance. Points of interest are highlighted, including local flora, fauna, geology, history, and folklore.

Helen Fairbairn is a full-time writer of outdoor activity guides, including Northern Ireland - A Walking Guide (2012), and walking guidebooks to the Rocky Mountains, Scotland’s highlands and islands and the European Alps. She lives in County Sligo, and is a regular contributor to Walking World Ireland, Ireland’s only dedicated walking magazine. A third title, Best Walks in Ireland, is due from The Collins Press in 2014.

We did about 5 hikes from this book while in Dublin for a week. The directions and explanations were excellent, clear and easy to follow.Some of the tips were fantastic. They defiantly saved us from mistakes as some of the routes and trails were not intuitive and without the information I would have chosen to walk the wrong way.As a side not, we were in Ireland for 9 days in June without a drop of rain, only blue skies and sun. Perhaps this book brought the good weather luck?

Well-written and informative. Pulls no punches about trail conditions and how to access trail heads. Only wish I had time to access all the hikes described.
