Introducing... According To Angels! Many years ago, I would tell my little daughter a story every night about angels who would come down from heaven to help kids on earth. The angels would have heart-shaped pockets full of God's love that they would sprinkle all around. The love would help the children make the best choices when resolving the problem at hand. Our stories focused on the stressful issues children face every day, ranging from mean kids and problems on the playground to the fear of going to a new school. Each night, the story would resolve the day's problem with help from the angels, sprinkling God's love to help the children make the best choices. According To Angels ~ Book I, The Story of JillyB the Angel, was created to begin to share these stories. I am extremely blessed to have worked with an amazing artist, Leslie Alfred McGrath. Leslie was not only able to bring the characters I had imagined to life through her beautiful illustrations, but also to capture the essence of the story I was trying to convey.

Darcy Cardarelli and her family live north of Boston. This is her first ever attempt at creating a children's story. Leslie Alfred McGrath, the illustator, has been creating art for children since she graduated from Rhode Island School of Design in 1980. Her work has appeared in hundreds of books for home and school, and in magazines such as Highlights For Children. She lives north of Boston with her husband, three children, and a large golden dog.

According to Angels is a beautifully written book with gorgeous illustrations that can be read to smaller children, or given to older children to read alone. As a preschool teacher, I plan to use this in my classroom as a teaching tool to help show children how easy it can be to make the "right" choices, especially with JillyB and Boomer on your side! This is a perfect message to children today with so many difficult choices facing them. I highly recommend this to parents and teachers alike!

According to Angels is a delightful book about two angels and a dog who go down to earth to help children make the right choices. Once on earth even one of the angels, Jilly B, needs help keeping focused on her job. Refreshing book with a moral and beautiful illustrations.Looking forward to Jilly B, Joey and Boomer’s next adventure.

According to Angels is a refreshing children’s book. A book for children that actually has a wonderful story with a strong moral message. Youngsters love JillyB, Joey and Boomer and the beautiful pictures bring their adventures to life. This book is filled with a great deal of creative thought.

What a wonderful gift to all children! Children, as well as adults, will enjoy the story of JillyB and how one person can make a difference in the world. The pictures are so inviting, and the story is so touching. A great gift to any child in your life!
