Synopsis

This volume covers the trial of Joachim von Ribbentrop, the Foreign Minister of the Third Reich, a man who remained fanatically loyal to Hitler right until the end, saying that Ã¢â ¬Å“Even with all I know, if in this cell Hitler should come to me and say Ã¢â ¬ËœDo This!Ã¢â ¬â„¢, I would still do it.Ã¢â ¬Â•It also contains the testimonies of many eye-witnesses, among those, the Ernst Wilhelm Bohle, a high-ranking member of the SS, who was tried in the subsequent Ã¢â ¬Å“Ministries TrialÃ¢â ¬Â• for the less important and influential figures of the Nazi Party. Additionally, the testimony of Karl Stroelin, the mayor of Stuttgart was put forth in this trial. Stroelin was involved in the deportation of 2,000 Jews from Stuttgart, the majority of whom were murdered in the death camps, and was thus found guilty in the trial, though he went through de-Nazification and was later released. Gustav Adolf Steengracht von Moyland, the Secretary of State for the Foreign Office during 1943-1945 was also called upon to testify along with Paul Otto Schmidt, who was a translator for Hitler during the surrender of France, the British declaration of War and the Munich Agreement.

Customer Reviews

I am a history buff and am enjoyuing what I havereadso far. What I have read isthe reading of the indictments of the German officers on trial. I enjoy reading anything about WW2.When the triials took plce I was only 8 yrs old, but reading them means alot to me.My Father wasa company commander in the 10thj Armored Division and was killed on 19 December,1944. He is in the American Cemetery in Luxembourg.One thing I would heartedly recommend is that every German be required to read all 22 volumes and learn what really went on in their country from, the early '30's to May of 1945.Again I am enjoying what I have read so far.

Gripping but not quite comprehensive enough.
