Masters of Their Universe is the eleventh book by Robert B. Haas. Haas's investment firms compiled a highly successful record over three decades, including the noteworthy acquisitions of Dr Pepper, 7-Up, and Sybron International. More recently, the author chose to pursue his artistic passions, ultimately becoming one of the world's most renowned aerial photographers. Haas has authored a series of photography books on African wildlife and four collections of aerial photography published by National Geographic, including two of the most widely-distributed single photographer works in National Geographic's history. Haas's photographs have appeared in major exhibits throughout the world, and his work has been featured on CBS News Sunday Morning, ABC News Nature's Edge, and CNN, and in National Geographic magazine, Time magazine, Forbes Life, and numerous other publications. A graduate of Yale University and Harvard Law School, Haas has frequently lectured at both universities.

I have many "coffee table books" with beautiful photos of Africa, but this one is different. Offering a perspective you do not see even from an airline seat. these are aerial photos with enough elevation to show the patterns of the topography and subject matter...but also close to earth so you SEE the people, the wildlife, the plants that make up the images. A great book to just pore over the photos and dream of faraway places.

This book is breath taking. The photography is so beautiful you think it can't really be our planet. It portrays Africa from a different perspective showing the vastnest and complexities of the region. The descriptions of the photographs are well written. I enjoyed the poetry and prose added in the appropriate places in the book.

The photos were really not what I was expecting

After returning from a 4-week safari in Eastern Africa, this book was able to provide us with pictures that were certainly unlike anything that we had taken.

The photos are incredible. The book is extra large sized.

it is one of the most beautiful books I have ever seen. If you love Africa, you will love this book. The photos are taken from a helicopter, as if the Gods were looking down on Africa. Awesome and amazing are two words that can't even do it justice.

This book was just a feature on The Sunday Morning Show. The views of Africa that this man has captured from a helicoper are very moving. I not only want to own this book I wish I could go to Washington DC and see the exhibit of the original photographs. An exhibition of Robert Haas's photographs can be viewed in National Geographic's M Street Building, October 25, 2005, to January 25, 2006. But if that is not possible buy the book.
